

<que> absolvam [for – que cf. Blomgren p. 16 sq.], 28.1.2: tamen praesentis temporis modestia fretus, carpiam ut quaeque memoria digna sunt explanabo; 30.2.8: quae funera tunc explicari poterunt carpiam, si ad ea quoque venimus; Krebs Anth. 1. p. 263; Liesenberg (1889) p. 14 sq. (for the adverb ending in -im).

b Cf. 14.6.25: per minu<ti>as aurigarum equorumque praecipua vel delicta scrutantes; 16.7.8: inter praecipua enim quae eorum quisque studio possiderat vel ingenio.

VII, 5

p. 79, 14-15 natus in Armenia sanguine libero.

- a Armenia. Cf. II p. 147.
b sanguine libero: affected expression.

p. 79, 14-15 etiam tum parvulus abstractis geminis Romanis mercatoribus venundatus.

- a etiam tum. Cf. ad 14.1.1 (I p. 54).
b parvulus. For the numerous diminutives cf. Liesenberg (1889) p. 16 sq.
c abstractis geminis. Vales.: "Geminos autem vocat testes, more Graecorum, qui ἀδελφοὺς nominant. Sed et Solinus 13.2. ita appellat, cum de fibro dicit: Ne captus prosit, ipse geminos suos devorat." Cf. et. Souier p. 159.
d Romanis mercatoribus. For slaves and the slave-trade. cf. Stein Spät. Gesch. 1. p. 28 (with notes); Cod. Just. 4.42.2: Barbarae autem gentis eunuchos extra loca nostro imperio subiecta factos cunctis negotiatoribus vel quibusque aliis emendi in commerciis et vendendi ubi voluerint tribuimus facultatem (a^o ± 460). But in 4.42.1 (Imp. Constantinus A. Ursino duci Mesopotamiae) is written: Siquis post hanc sanctionem in orbe Romano eunuchos fecerit, capite puniatur; and the transferring of, thus the trade in the latter category, is expressly forbidden in 4.42.2, under threat of very severe punishment.

p. 79, 15 venundatus. Dignified for: venditus. Cf. Krebs Anth. 2 p. 723 (with lit.); Heum-Seckel p. 618.

ad palatium Constantini deducitur.

- a palatium. Cf. ad 14.5.8 (I p. 129).
b Constantini: Constantine the Great. Cf. I p. 43. (Stammatel).

p. 79, 15-20 ubi paulatim . . . audiret. The text is corrupt and shows 3 lacunas. I can not think of any better conjectures than those found by Valesius and followed by Clark.

a litteris quantum tali fortunae satis esse poterat crudus. The professional soldier Amm. is contemptuous of these eunuchs. Hence: tali fortunae and: quantum satis esse poterat. But one should not believe, from this utterance, that the education of the eunuchs, at least in court, did not reach a very high level. On the contrary. That would not fit in with their influential positions, which required an extensive specialist knowledge.

b cogitandi invenientique dubia et scrupulosa acumine nimio praestans. Amm.'s meaning is clear, although his words are not. Rolle: conspicuous for his remarkable keenness in devising and solving difficult and knotty problems; Blichele: zeichnete sich in hohem Grade durch Scharfsinn in Beurteilung und Ergründung dunkler und tiefliegender Wahrheiten auf. scrupulosa = (here) difficulta. But in 16.7.9: Verum si forte scrupulosus quidam lector antiquitatum . . . nobis opponat, the word means: hypercritical.

acumine. Keen mind, acumen. As found often in Cicero. Cf. Cic. ad fam. 5.14.2: Quid enim? tu solus aperta non videbis, qui propter acumen occultissima perspicis? and the well-known verse: Horat. Epist. 2.1.161:

Serius enim Graecis admovit acumina chartis.

- c immensum quantum memoria vicens. Cf. ad 15.8.15 (IV p. 39).
d Constans imperator. Cf. I p. 43 (Stammatel).
e ex adulto. Cf. ad 14.7.7 (II p. 24). On the basis of the usage by Amm. this version can be defended, in my opinion.
f honestas suadentem et recta. For the traiectio, metri causa. cf. Blomgren p. 25 sq. (and passim).
g nulla vel venia certe digna peccasset. An allusion to the homosexual debaucheries indulged in by Constans. Cf. Aur. Vict. 41; Zos. 2.42; Stein, Spät. Gesch. I p. 202 sq.
Note the variatio temporum: audiret . . . peccasset. Clausula: (maturum audiret) $\sim \sim \sim \sim \sim \sim (1)$.

VII, 6

praepositus cubiculi cf. ad 16.7.2 (p. 78. 26-27).

p. 79, 21

a Iulianum . . . Asiaticis coalitum moribus, ideoque levem. Cf. 22.10.3: hoc autem ideo adsequi potuit, quod levitatem agnoscentis commotoris ingenii sui, praefectis proximisque permittebat, ut fidenter impetus suos altorum tendentes atque decebat, monitu opportuno frenarent: monstrabatque subinde se dolere delictis et gaudere correctione. (ut fidenter . . . monstrabat om. V. add. G); 25.4.16: Digestis bonis quae scire potuimus, nunc ad explicanda eius vita veniamus, licet dicta sint carpiam (cf. ad 16.7.4).